Aaravitra was an attempt at breaking away from the more conventional Indian sound by bringing into question the Indian classical sound. The album was released with an emphasis on creating something unique and inspiring to listen to in an alternate world. One of the most exciting aspects about the album is how Kailash Kalsadurai's passion and creativity was expressed through his music. He chose songs that represented different aspects of the Indian musical tradition and the music could be a reflection of his mood, his own sense of self, the environment/time in which he lived and felt and, if one listened carefully, also reflect the spirit of the time of his life. He chose songs that were personal and authentic and included lyrics from various poets or singers who, together made up the majority of his compositions. The album has all of India's top artists and influences such as V.N. Singh, V. Naga Singh, Jairam Khemka, V. Gaurav, R. R. Jayanthi, R. S. Narula, Arvind Kejriwal and more. To this point the most notable aspect is how Kailash Kalsadurai's music evokes the emotions of listeners and creates an experience of deep intimacy and profound joy in a sound that might be too intimate or too distant for a typical listener. The album is filled with unique songs that range from Maha Prakrit (A.B.A.), to Ramayana (Raga), Vaishya (A.B.A.), to many other songs. Although Aaravitra is a musical album, its songs can be seen to be full of meaning; Kailash Kalsadurai is well known for his love for poetry and, to him it becomes much more so when you look at such beautiful lyric art that he writes..
